- ☐ Compare all five before choosing. Google's Australian shop lists the HP and Lenovo models from $2,299, the Dell from $2,399 and the ASUS from $2,799; the Acer starts at A$2,599 and is due in November.
 - ☐ Decide whether you need the tablet mode. Acer calls the Googlebook 14 the first convertible Googlebook; its screen folds back for tent, stand and tablet use, and it starts $300 higher than the HP and Lenovo models.
 - ☐ Check the configuration at that price. Acer lists two processors and up to 32GB of memory, and says specifications vary by region, so confirm the processor, memory and storage on the Australian listing.
 - ☐ Ask the retailer how long A$2,599 lasts. Acer calls its starting prices limited-time offers and does not give an end date or a regular price.
 - ☐ Budget for a stylus. The screen supports USI 2.0 styluses, and Acer says the stylus is sold separately.
 - ☐ Check your phone. Using phone apps on the laptop needs a supported phone running Android 17 or later.
 - ☐ Set a reminder for the Google AI Pro offer. Redeem it by 31 March 2027, and decide before the 12 months end whether to keep paying; Google's Australian shop lists the plan at A$32.99 a month and limits the offer to new subscribers.
 - ☐ Hold off for a work fleet. Google says this year's Googlebooks do not support domain enrolment or central management, with tools starting in the second half of 2027.
